

Hi, I'm Marty Lueking, and I live at 3580 E. Marshall Gulch Place.

I moved to Tucson three years ago and have enjoyed every minute of being a resident of this beautiful community. While it can get a little hot at times, the natural beauty and peaceful atmosphere make it a wonderful place to live.

Before moving to Arizona, I spent my entire life in Bloomington, California—a small unincorporated area in San Bernardino County, located between Riverside and San Bernardino. I was born and raised there, and my family lived close together. My parents and grandparents lived next door to each other, and after my grandparents passed away, I purchased their home and continued living there until our move to Tucson.

I worked in the industrial electronic parts industry for 45 years. During that time, I owned my own company, and in 2015, I transitioned into a role as an industrial manager for a large electronics company in Fullerton. In my later years in California, I also served as a caregiver for my parents, who lived next door. Sadly, my mother passed away in August 2021, and my father followed just a few months later. Around the same time, my spouse's father passed away due to COVID-19, leaving us with very little family left in California.

I have always loved Tucson. One of my favorite sayings is, "Even the weeds look great here—we have a healing desert."

My hobbies include model trains, video and photography, and community service. I recently completed a term as Vice President of Lutheran Church of the Foothills in Tucson and served a three-year term at the Scoundrel & Scamp live theater. Currently, I volunteer at the Gadsden Pacific Toy Train Operating Museum.
